The Sharpe Ratio is a way to measure how much return an investment option is getting for the amount of risk being taken. A higher Sharpe Ratio means better risk-adjusted returns (i.e. more reward for the amount of risk being taken). A lower Sharpe Ratio means poorer risk-adjusted returns (i.e. less reward for the amount of risk being taken).

Why is minimising risk in investment performance important?

Think of it like driving a car: two drivers may reach the same destination, but one takes a smooth, safe route while the other speeds and takes unnecessary risks. Risk-adjusted returns help you see which investment option is delivering strong results whilst minimising the risks.

CSC has been recognised as an expert in managing the risks it takes with members retirement savings by consistently delivering strong risk-adjusted returns, meaning the road travelled with members money is far smoother than many other super funds.

In 2024, CSC was the Winner of SuperRatings Smooth Ride Award, recognising strong risk-adjusted return performance. In 2025, CSC was also nominated as one of just five industry leading finalist funds for this award.
